

WARMING UP JUST A LITTLE

Candidates Who Are Mentioned in Local Campaign--Public Works Board Causing Activities

The latest names of the Republican party mentioned for the mayoralty contest are James L. Parker, ex-tax collector and William P. Pickett, but it is likely that neither will consent to get into the game regardless of a party move to push them. Mr. Parker is at present county treasurer and it is understood that he has really not much desire to come forward as a candidate. Mr. Pickett last year declined to accept the honor though it was an easy matter to place him in nomination had he said the word. The vacancies in the Board of Public Works is causing as much a stir as anything in the local campaign. The democrats succeeded in electing their first member of that board in December last, and will this year work hard for the second member. In connection with the election of new members, both parties appeared to be active and among those mentioned are, John Newick to succeed himself, Clarence H. Paul, John W. Emery, P. T. McWili-ams, M. J. Griffin, Albert Hislop, Edward P. Seyboft, William H. Marshall, Leon E. Scruton, Councilmen Her- rick, Sugden, Clark, and Smart, republicans and Parson and Littlefield democrats are said to have some anxiety to go back for another term. John Yarwood is expected to have clear sailing as a republican candidate for the assessors board.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Margaret P. Johnson
Mrs. Margaret P. Johnson, widow of John Wesley Johnson, died at her home on Elwyn road on Wednesday evening, from the result of a paralytic shock. She was born in Boston, Mass., May 4, 1830, the daughter of Thomas and Catherine Powers. She was a woman highly esteemed by a large circle of acquaintances and her death will cause sorrow to many. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Kate, who has been a devoted companion to the deceased in her declining years.

John H. Bartlett, chairman of the Republican City committee, has resigned that position on account of ill health and family reasons, but the notices for the call of the caucuses were sent out in his name on account of lack of time to act upon the resignation.

IDENTIFIED AS LORD DOUGLAS

His Brother in Chicago Says That Douglas Is Still Alive

A Mystery Surrounds Man Who Committed Suicide in New York on Monday

New York, Nov. 8.—One of the most perplexing identification mysteries which ever developed in New York shrouds the body of a man which rests in an uptown undertaker's establishment tonight.

In the opinion of two persons it is the body of Lord Sholto Douglas, brother of the Marquis of Queensberry, member of one of the best known noble families of England. But according to the Marquis, who is quoted in dispatches from Chicago, the body cannot be that of his brother, for he says he had a letter from Lord Douglas two days ago indicating that he was safe and well in the far West.

To add to the mystery it has been recalled that some years ago a man bearing marked resemblance to Lord Douglas passed himself off as such and was arrested in this country on several occasions on charges of bigamy.

The body is that of a man who registered at the Hotel Astor Oct. 15 as Maurice Stuart of San Francisco. He was found in his room Monday with a self-inflicted bullet wound in his heart. There was every evidence that the man was of English parentage and had been a gentleman.

A pair of overalls found in the room suggested that perhaps he was at financial extremities and had planned an attempt at manual labor as a last resort. His baggage bore hotel labels from all parts of the world, but outside the entry Maurice Stuart in a book, there was no clue to his identity.

The announcement that the body had been identified as that of Lord Douglas came tonight from Coroner Fernberg. The coroner as a physician some years ago, had known Lord Douglas as a patient, and it was the coroner himself who first suspected that the suicide might be Douglas. He was not sure enough of it to express more than an opinion, but this comment, when circulated, came to the ears of Mary Noble, an actress, who had known a Lord Douglas in the West, and tonight when she saw the body she was sure it was that of Lord Douglas.

Miss Noble said she knew Lord Douglas when he was appearing on the stage in the West with his wife, who was an actress, in 1896.

"The man interested me so much that I have always watched him with more than ordinary interest," Miss Noble said. "If I were mistaken in the identification and met Lord Douglas in the street I should drop dead from fright. His hair is streaked with gray a little now, but that is not surprising, for it is 16 years since I saw him.

"It was in 1896 that I met Lord Sholto Douglas. I was playing with my husband, Leonard J. Grover, in vaudeville at the Alcazar Theatre, San Francisco. Lord Douglas had married an actress, whose maiden name I don't recall, and the two were appearing at the Alcazar. He met her somewhere in Oklahoma and she was billed in vaudeville as Lord Sholto. A manager made an offer to Lord Douglas to appear on the stage with his wife and he did so. His wife did most all the work of their act, but his name was the attraction. "After looking at the body tonight I have no doubt that it is that of Lord Sholto Douglas. I do not know what became of his wife and the child I understand was born to them."

PORTSMOUTH

DENNISON

ARRESTED

He Is Charged With Passing Worthless Checks

Bangor, Me., Nov. 8.—Walter F. Dennison, aged 30 of Melrose, Mass. was arrested here today charged with passing worthless checks.

Dennison said to be a graduate of Phillips Andover and Harvard, came to the Bangor House about 10 days ago registering under the name of Ames. He made the acquaintance of a number of people here and said that he was agent for a Vermont lumber company.

On Friday he was introduced at the Eastern Trust and Banking company and opened an account, depositing a check of $483 on the Colebrook National bank of Colebrook, N. H., for collection. Yesterday he deposited a check for $755.33 on the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust company.

This morning he presented his own check for $350 at the Eastern Trust and Banking Company which was cashed. He then paid his bill at the Bangor House with his personal check on the Bangor bank. Meanwhile the Eastern Trust and Banking Company was notified by the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust company that the check on the Boston bank deposited by Dennison was worthless.

The bank notified Police Headquarters and Inspector Knaide and O'Donnell started a hunt for Dennison. They found that after paying his bill at the hotel he had telephoned for two parlor seats for Boston on the 1:30 train. Then he hired a hack to drive around town for a time, leaving it on a side street. He walked to the station and was arrested just as he was about to take the train.

ANTLERS OF A DEER

"The growth and development of the antlers of a deer is one of the marvels of the woods," said a naturalist. "The deer's horn differs materially in its composition from that of other horned animals. It is characterized by both animal and vegetable growth.

"It sprouts from the brain without any prolongation of the frontal bones. It rises and breaks through the sinews, takes root on the bone and grows the same as a vegetable. It is nourished by and secretes albumen upon the surface and disposes of the fibrin the same as an animal.

"The age of a buck is always indicated by the prongs on his horns. He is 2 year old before he has any horns at all. In the spring of his second year the skin on the top of his head over the frontal bone begins to swell. The horns of the deer are sprouting. Two swellings are the footstalls from which they will spring. As the horns grow the skin stretches over them and continues to do so until they have come to the natural growth.

"The skin at this first stage of the horn's growth, no matter whether the horns are the spikes of the 2-year old or the spreading antlers of the matured buck, is a soft, velvety covering, while all beneath it is as yet but a great tissue of blood vessels.

The deer's horns in all the preliminary or cartilaginous stages are part of the animal's nervous and venous structure.

"While the horns are in the soft condition the arteries which run up from the head through them make furrows in the yielding substance. It is these furrows that give the buck's horns the rough corrugated appearance they present after they are hardened.

"This stage in the growth of a deer's horns is known in the woodsman's vernacular as the velvet. As long as the horns are in the velvet they are extremely tender and entirely useless to the deer. The soft skin must be removed, but not suddenly or harshly; and therefore its removal is not attempted by the deer until another remarkable function in the development is completed.

"If the soft skin on the horns were broken before the arteries were disconnected from their germinating point there would be an instantaneous turning back of the blood to the brain and the deer would die. This danger is prevented by the formation of a rough ring of bone around the base of each horn, the roughness of the formation being caused by the grooves designed for the passage of the arteries through them.

"These grooves are gradually contracted as the new bone forms until the arteries are compressed as by ligatures and the circulation of the blood above the rings of bone is effectually stopped. The velvet skin thus deprived of its vital source dries and peels off of the horns, a process of separation which the buck hastens by rubbing the horns against the trunks of rough barked trees.

"This rubbing of the horns against the trees displaces more or less bark from the trees and leaves a favorite sign to the passer through the woods and wise in the ways of their wild creatures that there are deer about.

When the velvet is off of the horns they have reached the perfect stage, according to the age of the buck.

"The buck deer's first horns do not come to the dignity of antlers. They are simply a pair of graceful, sharp-pointed, spikelike projections, hence the term spike buck among hunters. Each succeeding year adds a prong to the buck's horns, and when he is adorned with his proud headdress of five branching prongs all woodsmen know that he cannot be less than 7 years old. When the horns are thus five-pronged they are the perfect and complete antlers of the buck, any greater number of prongs or points having no significance excepting as a freak of nature.

"When spring approaches, a new set of horns begins to sprout beneath the old ones, rising from the animal's head like a growing plant from the soil until they gradually push the preceding season's horns from their place. These fall from the buck's head, and the new ones in due course proudly crown the deer's head, another prong added to him if he has not come to adult years and the entire set of five he has.

"Nothing about a deer's horns is of greater mystery than the disappearance or absence from the woods of the buck's horns after shedding. Almost absolutely indestructible, what becomes of the sets of antlers that are cast off by buck deer where to be found, and where if every year? And not only by buck deer but by bull elk and moose and way of disappearing quite as mysterious as that of the deer horns—for the great palmeto spread-branches of the adult bull moose pausing yet for a satisfactory reply to the long time query. What becomes of the castoff deer horns?"

NEWINGTON.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ramson and family, who came from Mattapoisett, Mass., last week in their auto, will remain for a few weeks visiting Mrs. Ramson's uncles, Messrs. Thomas and James Pickering.

Albert Phillips spent Sunday with the Misses Abbie and May Frink.

The many friends of Mrs. Frances Staples are pleased to know that she is able to spend a few days at her old home.

The body of Mr. Winthrop Hoyt was brought here on Friday afternoon and interred in the family lot.

The relatives of Mr. Winthrop Hoyt, whose death occurred very suddenly at his home in Greenland last week, attended his funeral on Friday afternoon. The family have the sympathy of their friends and relatives in this vicinity.

The District Deputy made his annual inspection visit on Tuesday evening at the regular meeting of the Piscataqua Grange. Several grangers from Portsmouth and Greenland were present, and the second degree was conferred upon several candidates. After all business was concluded a bounteous repast was served, and a social time was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Charles Coleman has painted the outside of his buildings.

Mary Pickering passed Sunday with her sister in South Eliot, Me.

PURCHASES PEYSER PROPERTY

Joseph Cohen has purchased from Gustave Peyser the property fronting the Piscataqua river and bounded by Mary and Mechanic streets. The property consists of three two tenement houses and about 10,000 square feet of land. Mr. Cohen buys for an investment. The price of sale is withheld.

SAVED THE TOWN

New Gasoline Engine Does Effective Work at Monson

Monson, Me., Nov. 8.—A new gasoline fire engine, put in use for the first time tonight, was all that saved the entire town of Monson from being wiped out by the flames tonight.

As it was the greater part of the business section of the village was reduced to ashes, half a dozen families made homeless, and it is feared that one man may have lost his life. He is F. T. Flint, aged 45, a cripple who lived over one of the stores. The members of his family escaped with difficulty, and he has not been seen since the fire started.

The fire started in the dry goods store of F. J. Hughes in the heart of the business section. Before it was stopped the Masonic block, a three story wooden structure, the postoffice and five stores were in ruins. Help was asked from Bangor, but before an engine could be started from that city the blaze was under control and the request was recalled.

Although the new fire engine was an important factor in stopping the fire, it was ably supplemented by an old handiwork, which was placed at the southern end of the village and stayed the spread of the flames in that direction. Both engines drew water from Lake Hebron. When the fire first started a brisk breeze was blowing, but this later died down and thus aided the firemen.

The cause of the fire is not known, and the loss is roughly estimated at $50,000. As soon as the ruins cool sufficiently a search will be instituted to ascertain if the remains of Flint are among the embers. He is a man of about 45 years of age, and had a wife and two children.

Mrs. Lillian Gore of Abbott, mother of Mrs. Flint, was visiting her daughter's home and finding her escape cut off she climbed out on to the roof of the piazza, from where she was rescued by volunteers.

H. E. Smith, who acted as chief engineer of the fire department tonight was overcome by smoke, but is not in a serious condition.

BITS OF SPORT

The Manchester and Portsmouth high school football teams will meet in this city next Saturday afternoon on the South playgrounds. Game will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

Kersburg has finished his coaching term at Cambridge this fall, and is likely to be missed between now and the Yale game.

Pelton can't play against Carlisle, so Harvard is likely to be almost as much handicapped for want of a punter as it was against Princeton.

Pennsy's record so far is five games won and three lost, and the team has scored only 78 points to 57 for its opponents. It has been many years since the Quakers had a record as poor as this.

Dartmouth winds up its hard practice for the Tiger game today. The squad will spend Friday night in New York and will go to Princeton early Saturday morning.

Carlisle has scored 224 points so far in winning eight games. Harvard has scored 78 points, winning five games and losing one. Ten points have been scored against the Indians and 14 points against Harvard.

Capt. Fisher's shift to tackle looks like a permanent one. Much, however, will depend on Storer's passing if he is to remain at center. Blackthorn of Princeton slapped that two-motion pass of Storer's last week at a time in the game when it hurt most.

THE GIMLETS ELECT

The Gimlet Club who recently opened quarters on Bartlett street, elected the following officers on Wednesday:

President, William Hoyt. Vice president, F. McGonnell. Financial secretary, P. Hughes. Recording Secretary, Gustaf W. Critch.

WILL SEEM LIKE OLD TIMES

With the high cost of vegetables and in fact nearly everything in the eatable line, the prospect of cheap turkeys in local markets for Thanksgiving is pleasing. It is a novelty, as well. For several years the autumn demand for turkeys has been so great that dealers have been enabled with some show of reasonableness to put up the prices to the point of making the bird a real luxury. Now it appears that so many farmers have gone in for turkey raising that there is a big supply. Thanksgiving this year will perhaps seem like good old times with no gloomy dread of the poulterer's bill shadowing the feast.

INVESTIGATION SEEMS INEVITABLE

At the coming session of Congress it is believed that an investigation of the high cost of living will be made. Many of the members of the house, who have returned to Washington, for the long session which begins next month, has this cost of living on his mind. Each one says frankly that he is thinking about it because his constituents are not only thinking about it, but are talking about it. No one seems to have any comprehensive idea as yet as to what sort of investigation the congress might make or as to what definite result might come out of another inquiry, but there is pretty general agreement that the legislative body will conduct some sort of inquiry. "My constituents seem to think that congress ought to do something on the subject," said one middle west member yesterday, "and I suppose the constituents of every member of the house hold the same view."

The department of agriculture is thoroughly in sympathy with this demand for a thorough investigation touching the cost of living. It wants to conduct the investigation. Secretary Wilson has had in mind for several months a broad gauge inquiry, and it is now very well understood among his intimate friends that he does not wish to retire from the cabinet until his investigation is made. He cannot proceed without an appropriation from the congress, and it is intentional to ask for a considerable sum of money at the coming session to be used in gathering information. Secretary Wilson has had a notion for a long time that the producer of farm products does not get all he is entitled to receive out of his produce and that the consumer in the city is compelled to pay extortionate prices for farm products of all kinds. The trouble from the congress to go ahead and find out whether this is the fact, and if so the cause for it. Dr. H. W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry, also believes the department should make a study of the middleman. Dr. Wiley has said time and again that he is convinced that most of the middlemen take extortionate profits and he believes the time is near at hand when there will be more direct dealing between the producer and the consumer.

BIRD'S EYE VIEWS

The temporary removal of the aviation grounds from College Park for climatic reasons brings up the question whether the bird man is to be classified as migratory.

A large number of irresponsible letters sent to the White House encounter the veto power as soon as they are read by a secretary. It must puzzle a Tammany boss to imagine how people can think up so many unpleasant things to say about him.

Sometimes a collegian who goes in to politics seems as happy as a boy out of school.

John D. Rockefeller has been giving advice to the American youth on how to prosper. Mr. Rockefeller's theories may be confidently indorsed as those of an expert.

The Department of Agriculture can always be depended on not to handle a resignation rumor in a precipitate manner. A rumor as to the formation of a cranberry trust was immediately compensated for by the assurance that turkeys are unusually plentiful.

Wu Ting-fang has gone to the front in assuming responsibilities in the Chinese government. Wu may be a two stepper, but he is not a side-stepper.

The cheque must be kept out of the country. It means an additional expense which the purchaser of grand opera tickets must ultimately pay.

Turkey does not go so far as to charge that Italy's mode of warfare constitutes an official indorsement of Black Hand methods.

Maine came very near getting rid of a thirst which for a long time been frankly admitted in various parts of the state.

The Turks and Italians are pointing with pride to their fully equipped and well disciplined regiment of news censors.

The "How old was Ann?" query had nothing on "How did Maine vote?" for several weeks. However the latter question can now be definitely answered, while the former can never be. Maine stays dry—or moderately dry.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

The Maine Decision
The finding by Gov. Plaisted and Council that the State of Maine is still for prohibition by 758 votes settles one phase of a vexatious question. After a delay made necessary by the peculiar laws of Maine the Governor has dealt fairly and justly by all parties concerned. The people believed they could trust the Governor in the matter of counting the votes and they have not been disappointed. Gov. Plaisted has issued a many message on the actual condition of the defective election laws. He and his council were simply called on by existing statutes to state what

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Portsmouth Citizen's Advice

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and not time to experiment. These are common symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Portsmouth. Follow the advice of a Portsmouth citizen. Mrs. Robert Slaney, 30 Court St., Portsmouth, N. H., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Philbrick's, two years ago and they cured me of pain and urinary disorders. I can now do anything I like to do. I have been able to receive out of my produce and also to pay for my housework with ease and have for farm products of all kinds. The trouble from the congress to go ahead and find out whether this is the fact, and if so the cause for it. Dr. H. W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry, also believes the department should make a study of the middleman. Dr. Wiley has said time and again that he is convinced that most of the middlemen take extortionate profits and he believes the time is near at hand when there will be more direct dealing between the producer and the consumer."

should make a study of the middleman. Dr. Wiley has said time and again that he is convinced that most of the middlemen take extortionate profits and he believes the time is near at hand when there will be more direct dealing between the producer and the consumer.

Now that the final figures show that prohibition is sustained by only 758 votes, a great many residents of that State will continue to have cause to be dissatisfied and will continue to chafe until a change is made. Why, then, is it not good judgment to make a change that will meet public sentiment?

It is now reported that an amendment to the Constitution will be proposed at a special session of the Legislature to give the towns prohibition and the cities local option. Such an amendment would accurately reflect sentiment and would save the people of Maine a deal of wrangling. Furthermore, it is an easy way to solve a difficult problem and it seems reasonably fair.

Unless some such legislation is devised Maine will be quarreling about this question for many years, with the defeated party a strong protesting minority.—The Boston Globe.

The Model for Sherlock Holmes

Dr. Joseph Bell, the distinguished Scottish surgeon and the original of Sir A. Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes, died recently at his residence, Mauricewood, Milton Bridge, Airdrie, Scotland. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has sent a message of sympathy to an Edinburgh evening paper explaining that he did not know Dr. Bell personally but only as his professor. Dr. Bell, who was born in 1837, came of a family which for three generations had been distinguished in surgery. For a quarter of a century he was surgeon at the Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh, and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, when a young man, was one of his students. He was greatly impressed by his professor's display of inductive reasoning, and he has told many stories in illustration of it.

Many stories are told of Dr. Bell's wonderful powers of observation and analytical reasoning. For instance, he could tell from the mud on a patient's boots the part of the city or surrounding country he had come from. When giving gratuitous advice to outdoor patients at the Edinburgh royal infirmary he was fond of mystifying them by giving them little intimate tidbits regarding their occupation or past lives. "I see," he would observe slyly to a patient, "you are suffering from drink; you even carry a flask in the inside pocket of your coat. Throw it away." To another he would nonchalantly remark: "Cobbler, I see," having quickly observed the mark where the apostrophe had worn the man's trousers.

To an anxious mother he would quietly observe: "Your first child my father observed the mark where the apostrophe had worn the man's trousers. To an anxious mother he would quietly observe: "Your first child my father observed the mark where the apostrophe had worn the man's trousers. To an anxious mother he would quietly observe: "Your first child my father observed the mark where the apostrophe had worn the man's trousers."

Dr. Bell was well aware of the part he had played in creating the great detective of fiction and was proud of the fact. One winter evening some ladies were sitting round the fire reading and discussing Conan Doyle's hero when there entered the great surgeon. He asked what they were reading and they told him that it was "The Adventure of Sherlock Holmes." "I know the man," observed the doctor quickly. Returning shortly from seeing his patient, he came back to announce with as much modesty as might be: "I am Sherlock Holmes." London Daily Chronicle.

The Peace Problem

With the Turks sitting tight, Italy is discovering that, while one nation can make war, it takes two to make peace. Napoleon encountered that curious paradox at Moscow. That the Japanese would have been similarly instructed, had not Mr. Roosevelt intervened at the hour of their triumph in Manchuria, is altogether probable. The advice of A. Lincoln was that if you have caught hold of the hind leg of an elephant you had better let it go. It is not always easy to let go, however, sometimes not so easy as to catch hold. Japan might have found it a ticklish job to release Russia had she been permitted to arrive at a stage where that would have been expedient for her. Italy will be expedient for her. Italy will be expedient for her. Italy will be expedient for her.

hardly let go of Tripoli. At the same time it is not yet clear how Constantinople is to be induced to assent to her purpose to lop off the North African limb.—Providence Journal.

A Sentence That Will Count

The sentence of imprisonment from twenty-five to fifty years imposed by Judge Foster on the kidnapper of the Solmea boy will add that branch of criminal activity to the undesirable list on which bophs throwing took place when "The Fox" of Black Hand fame received a heavy sentence under the new concealed weapons law. Few persons will disapprove of the course of Judge Foster in inflicting the maximum sentence. The crime is cowardly and despicable under any conditions. The Solmea case was particularly dangerous to society in that the kidnapper apparently had brains enough to plan his crime with care and carry through the blackmailing part of it successfully. It was more than a year ago that the kidnapper returned his prisoner, after the parents had paid the ransom demanded under threats of death to the boy and them. Careful police work overcame all difficulties in the way of his capture, and Judge Foster, declining to consider certain technical questions, completed the case in a way to inspire considerable hesitation in the breasts of possible child snatchers. Every mother in the city should be thankful for the maximum sentence. New York Tribune.

Political Kindergarten

Has anyone ever heard a word of complaint against Insurance Commissioner George H. Adams? No. And has anyone ever questioned his ability? Then why does Mr. Bass want some one else—Portsmouth Herald.

No, no, you entirely miss the point. In later day New Hampshire politics, dear friend, when one seeks office, he not only spends his money with lavish hand but he also makes certain bargains, vulgarly called trades, in which certain supposedly useful politicians are promised jobs that entitle them a place at the public crib. No new places are available then new ones are created. The cause in the piping days of the recent reform campaign it appeared necessary to do such things, and even go into the Democratic fold and entice several and sundry ones to betray their party, that Reform might prevail. Kind Sir, would you be so cruel as to insist that all these expenses, the ordinary as well as the extraordinary, be drawn from one source, even though that be a plethoric one? No, a thousand times no. So what has ability of character or experience to do with it? The hungry must be fed, the naked clothed, the servant rewarded, the apostle satisfied. The interests of the state are secondary. Ponder upon these truths, dear friends, and not ask such questions. It's bad enough to have them propounded at every crossroad and corner in the state by the deluded voter who thought last year that trading and such dark and questionable methods had no future under a reform administration.—Cheshire Republican.

National Yearnings

That the ladies of the National Federation of Women's Clubs have decided to send to Congress an enormous petition asking the enactment of a law declaring the mountain laurel to be the national flower should surprise no one. It is indeed one of the things we may well permit to "overcome us like a summer's cloud, without our special wonder."

NEW CASTLE

New Castle, Nov. 9. By the odor of burned sugar assailing the nostrils of the passerby there are many cooks in New Castle now deep in the preserving process, laying up stores of sweets against next winter's needs. They have toiled with an arduous unswerving to put up the whole world in cans. We have visited the housewives where seemingly vinegar sits at the throat and where everything's "canned" (but themselves). LOST—A street iron pan that belongs to an automobile. EXETER THE FAVORITE

It Looks Like a Toss Up in the Game With Andover

The finishing touches for the Andover Exeter football teams will be applied this afternoon by coaches Lillard and Zeigler respectively in preparation for the annual game between the academies, which will be contested on Plimpton Playing Field, Exeter, Saturday afternoon.

So evenly matched are the teams that it is a tossup as to which will have the best of the argument. Exeter has played a regular schedule of games and her work in these has made her a favorite. Andover has played only three games, two resulting in victories and the other a setback.

Bus Zeigler, the old University of Pennsylvania guard, who has coached the Exeter eleven this fall, hopes for a victory.

Capt. Kirkpatrick and the other members of the Exeter team don't want the public to get the impression that they are over confident. "We have as good a chance to win as Andover, and will present our best eleven in order to accomplish the feat," says the captain. Exeter has not won since 1904.

Experts who have seen both elevens perform this fall lean a bit toward Exeter because of its work against Bates College, Yale '15, Dartmouth '15, Cushing Academy and Harvard second.

The "Granite" State eleven has an abundance of formations and trick plays which will be uncovered on Saturday when it faces its foe. The backfield has not as yet been finally decided upon, but it is a safe bet that Batten, who has been out of the game for two weeks, will be in the lineup. According to reports, Batten has returned from Pennsylvania, and he has made quite a reputation as a drop kicker. Andover, no doubt, will watch his as closely as Exeter will watch "Ned" Mahan, the fullback of the Andover eleven.

Exeter play is not built around any one player, such as it has been in past seasons, and for that reason the ability of the boys holding down places in the back field will be depended upon all the more.

Kelley, who has figured in many big games this year in the back field, returned to the squad a few days ago after being out for more than a week with slight injuries. Special care was taken of him, he has been one of the best ground gainers on the eleven.

Two former Somerville High school athletes who will be watched closely are Larry Caldwell at left tackle and Charles Dickman, the quarterback of the Exeter team. They were members of the Somerville High championship team in 1909.

Caldwell is regarded by many players who have opposed him this year of being one of the best tackles in preparatory school. He is a fine defensive player and usually opens large holes. He should have been opposed to Bob Jones of Andover, but the latter was shifted to right tackle Tuesday.

Capt Kirkpatrick is expected to face Bob Jones, Andover's giant tackle, and it should be a great battle royal between these two players.

Exeter is much heavier than Andover. Andover has two fast ends in Capt. Charles Van Brocklin and Maurice Brann.

Critics who have seen Brann and Van Brocklin in action predict that they will equal any college ends in the country. Both handle the forward pass cleverly.

While Exeter has the heavier backfield Andover will make up in speed what it lacks in weight.

AFTER 40 NOT WANTED

Beyond That Age New Places Hard to Secure Says Mr. Holder

Washington, Nov. 8.—That a man cannot get a position after he is 40 years old was asserted before the Employers' Liability and Workmen's Compensation Commission today by Arthur E. Holder of the American Federation of Labor. He had been speaking of the satisfactory operation of the British Compensation act of 1906, which recently he had investigated, when a question was asked as to its effect on the employment of men of advanced age.

In reply Mr. Holder said that regardless of this law there was a marked discrimination against the aged, not in Great Britain, but through out the industrial world.

"The man who is more than 40 and who has a few gray hairs cannot get back when once he loses his job, but he can hold on if he has a place," he said. "It is the same here that it is in England and it is the same in Germany and throughout the Continent."

This condition was not due, said Mr. Holder, to any legislation, but he result of economic conditions, and came of the determination to get the greatest possible product out of the human being employed.

With reference to the extent of the compensation for death or injuries, Mr. Holder said he thought the law should grant "all that the traffic will bear." He declared no death benefits should be less than $5000 and that no injury should be less than $1 a day, regardless of the ordinary compensation of the injured employee.

Half a dozen other representatives of the railroad workmen, spoke, and all endorsed the general plan of the commission and most of them expressed themselves satisfied with the demands, so far as they have been worked out.

Robert J. Cary, an attorney of the New York Central, made an appeal for a moderate law, which would not require a greater aggregate insurance fund than is expended by the railroads of the company.

Gardner Lathrop, an attorney of the Atchafalpa, Topeka & Santa Fe, advocated the extension of the terms of the proposed law to industries other than railroads, declaring that the railroads had been made the object of so much legislative attack as to render it difficult for them to pay necessary operating expenses and fair dividends.

Mr. Lathrop advocated the elective rather than the compulsory plan, which he said a large majority of the roads preferred.

CASCARETS INSURE INSIDE CLEANLINESS

The Millions of Cascaret Users Never Have Headache, Constipation, Biliousness or Sick Stomach

It is more necessary that you keep your bowels, liver and stomach clean, pure and fresh than it is to keep the sewers and drainage of a large city free from obstruction.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—merely for a few days with cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, indigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the decomposed matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

No odds how badly and upset you feel, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—they, too, need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

DAVIE IS SENTENCED

Pleads Guilty of Larceny and Gets Five Years

Boston, Mass., Nov. 8.—Robert E. Davie, the boy broker, pleaded guilty to the indictment accusing him of the larceny of $9,500 from Hannah L. Greenwood in the Superior Court today before Judge Sanderson, and was sentenced to the House of Correction for five years.

This disposition of the case was made on the recommendation of Dist. Atty. Pelletier. He told the court that notwithstanding all that has been said in the newspapers about the defendant and his victims, only two persons came forward ready to support a criminal prosecution against him. One was Hannah Greenwood and the other William H. Jackson.

As to the charge of larceny of securities from Jackson the District Attorney said he would have considerable difficulty to maintain it. He said that undoubtedly the large number of victims were people who placed their money with him to invest in stock speculation and suffered losses.

Eldridge R. Anderson, counsel for the defendant, said the District Attorney had stated the facts as they were and he acquiesced in his recommendation.

ROW AT NORFOLK YARD

Secretary Meyer will take up some interesting questions which have been referred to him from the navy yard at Norfolk, growing out of the attempt to install at that station a new system of navy yard management, along the lines, it is commonly understood, of some of the recommendations made by the special board of naval officers of which Rear Admiral Charles E. Vreeland, U. S. Navy, was president and in view of some of the suggestions gained by Secretary Meyer during his trip abroad. With the idea of putting the new system into operation with the least possible delay, Naval Constructor H. A. Evans, U. S. Navy, was detailed to duty at Norfolk. That officer is well known as an advocate of the so-called Taylor system of shop management. He achieved some notable results while on duty at the Mare Island navy yard and it was supposed had, on account of his activity in behalf of the Newberry system, engaged the disfavor of the navy department when Mr. Meyer became secretary of the navy. This supposition, entertained in many quarters, made it very difficult to understand why Naval Constructor Evans, after being detached from duty at Mare Island and assigned to an insignificant billet at Seattle and subsequently to somewhat subordinate duty at Bath, Me., should be called to Washington to take part in the deliberations of the Vreeland board. It was scarcely less remarkable when Naval Constructor Evans was ordered to Norfolk with what was understood to be orders giving him very general authority tending to curb the prerogatives of the commandant of the yard. The latter, Rear Admiral William A. Marshall, at that time, is understood to have filed a protest against this transfer of his duties and responsibilities. This apparently led to a modification of the instructions originally issued to Naval Constructor Evans so that the duties of that officer were materially changed. Now, it is understood, Naval Constructor Evans has come back with a protest of his own, although in the meantime Rear Admiral Marshall has been retired and detached from duty at Norfolk, where he has been succeeded as commandant by Captain Robert M. Doyle, previously on duty at that place as captain of the yard. Secretary Meyer is now called upon to consider the situation in view of this latest contribution to the controversy.—Army and Navy Register.

MAY BE HEARD TUESDAY.

Request of William E. Chandler in the Eddy Case Granted by Chief Justice Parsons.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 8.—Chief Justice Parsons of the Supreme Court today provisionally granted the request of William E. Chandler, counsel for George W. Glover in the litigation over the will of Glover's mother, Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, for a hearing on Tuesday next on Mr. Chandler's motion to remand the case to the Superior Court for trial and decision.

The court ordered that if Mr. Chandler filed his brief on Saturday next he would be given a hearing on Tuesday morning next; otherwise, there would be no argument until the case came before the Supreme Court on the demurrers set up by the defense.

The case, originating in Glover's suit in the Superior Court to have the residuary clause of Mrs. Eddy's will declared void, was sent to the Supreme Court for a determination of the points of law involved.

POLICE MAKE EARLY MORNING RAID

Charles Marrotta May Be Held on Three Charges

Charles Marrotta, a North End restaurant keeper, is out of luck again. At half past two this morning Sir Charles was yanked from his couch and ordered to walk up to police headquarters. Before proceeding with Marrotta, the searching squad, Officers Kelley, Philbrick, Murphy, Ducker and Doherty took a look around the place for wet goods. In the hunt they discovered Pearl Lewis, who went back with the officers on the return trip. When booked at the station he was charged with keeping liquor for sale and fornication. City Solicitor Emery said today that the third charge of keeping a disorderly house would be added to the other two in court this afternoon. The liquor charge is the result of a complaint by Cylvia Gello, who says he purchased some whiskey and who is held as a witness for the hearing today.
